OCTOBER 16 –17, 2015

HASANUDDIN UNIVERSITY (UNHAS), MAKASSAR, SOUTH SULAWESI, INDONESIA

Introduction of the Co-Host

DILA foundation was established in the belief that economic and political developments in and among the countries of Asia had reached the stage that they would welcome and benefit substantially from a mechanism that would promote and facilitate precisely those exchanges among their international law scholars that had failed to develop during the colonial era; and that a regular and reliable source of information concerning international law as applied or interpreted by the States of Asia would be of interest to other States and contribute significantly to the progressive development of an international legal order.

The Foundation was established, in the words of its charter, for:

- promotion of the study and analysis of topics and issues in the field of international law, in particular from an Asian perspective;
- promotion of the study of, and the dissemination of knowledge of, international law in Asia; promotion of contacts and co-operation between persons and institutions actively dealing with questions of international law relating to Asia.

The Foundation will be concerned with reporting and analyzing through informed discussion, developments in the field of international law relating to the region, and not primarily with efforts to distinguish particular attitudes, policies or practices as predominately or essentially “Asian”. If they are shown to exist, it would be an interesting by-product of the Foundation’s essential function, which is to bring about an exchange of views in the expectation that the process would reveal areas of common interest and concern among the State of Asia, and even more importantly, demonstrate that those areas of interest and concern are, in fact, shared by the international community as a whole.

Hasanuddin University is one of the major stated-owned universities in Indonesia, based in Makassar, the capital of South Sulawesi province. The University was inaugurated in 1956 by the first Vice President of Indonesia Dr. Mohammad Hatta and named after Sultan Hasanuddin, a King of Gowa Kingdom. Another important fact of Hasanuddin University is that the two oldest faculties (Law and Economic) used to be part of University of Indonesia, known as the Faculty of Law and Faculty of Economic of University of Indonesia in Makassar. Hasanuddin University also known as the biggest University outside Java and has been the source of excellent in the Eastern Part of Indonesia.

Hasanuddin University, Faculty of Law offered wide range of legal disciplines such as: criminal law. Civil law, administrative law, international law, and several other disciplines in the area of legal practice, sociology of law, environmental law and several subjects related to the law of the sea. Currently, the Faculty of Law has 108 Lectures, and has 2,499 Bachelor students, 370 Master students and 200 Doctorate students.
